Introduction

The mission of the State Board of Elections (SBE) is to provide all eligible citizens of the State convenient access to voter registration; provide all registered voters accessible locations in which they may exercise their right to vote; ensure uniformity of election practices; promote fair and equitable elections; and maintain registration records, Campaign Finance Reports, and other election-related data accurately and in a form that is accessible to the public.

One way to ensure fair and equitable elections is to conduct open and transparent elections. To facilitate openness and transparency, Maryland law permits certain individuals (called challengers or watchers) to be present in voting areas during early voting and on election day and observe the opening, voting, and closing procedures conducted by Maryland's election judges. Additionally, any individual may observe certain other election processes. This manual is for individuals who wish to observe voting during early voting or on election day and those individuals and entities that are authorized to designate individuals as challengers and watchers. This manual also describes other opportunities for the general public to observe certain election process.

Generally, the authority of challengers and watchers is governed by Section 10-311 of the Election Law Article of the Annotated Code of Maryland and Regulations 33.07.07 and 33.17.06 of the Code of Maryland Regulations. Refer to Appendices C and D for the statutory and regulatory provisions relevant to challengers and watchers.

Chapter 445 of the 2009 Laws of Maryland establishes early voting in Maryland. Under this law, voters are able to vote in person at any early voting location in the county where the voter resides. This law also specifies that all provisions of the Election Law Article that relate to election day voting also apply to early voting. As a result, the rights and prohibitions relating to challengers and watchers on election day apply during early voting.

For the purposes of this manual, the term "polling place" means either an early voting center or an election day polling place.

Part I: General Information

1. Can I observe the voting process?

Section 10-311 of the Election Law Article permits certain individuals to enter a polling place. Any individual can enter a polling place to challenge the right of any other individual to vote. To remain in a polling place and observe the voting process, you must be a registered voter in Maryland and be designated as a challenger and watcher. If you are not designated as a challenger and watcher, you are a non-accredited challenger and watcher and may not remain in a polling place to observe the voting process.

2. Who can designate me to be a challenger and watcher?

One of the following individuals or entities may designate you as a challenger and watcher:

1. SBE for any polling place in the State;
2. A local board of elections for any polling place located in the county of the local board;
3. Candidate, including a write-in candidate who has filed a Certificate of Candidacy;
4. Recognized political party; or
5. Any other group of voters supporting or opposing a candidate, principle, or proposition on the ballot. (To be eligible to designate challengers and watchers, the group of voters must form a political committee under Section 13-207 of the Election Law Article.)

The individual or entity who designates you as a challenger and watcher can revoke the designation at any time.

If you wish SBE to designate you or members of your organization as a challenger and watcher, you must submit your request in writing and your request must identify early voting centers or polling places in more than one county. You will be required to read this manual and may be required to attend a brief training session. You are strongly encouraged to submit your request at least one month before the election in which you wish to be designated.

3. How do I become an accredited challenger and watcher?

First, you must be a registered voter in Maryland. Only Maryland registered voters can be accredited challengers and watchers.

Second, you must have a Challenger and Watcher Certificate. A candidate or representative of an entity authorized to designate you as a challenger and watcher must sign the Challenger and Watcher Certificate and give it to you. With this signed certificate, you are considered an accredited challenger and watcher. See Appendix A for the Challenger and Watcher Certificate. You must have this certificate with you when you are acting as an accredited challenger and watcher.

Your Challenger and Watcher Certificate does not have to have an original signature; the designating individual or representative of the designating entity may sign one certificate, make copies of the signed certificate, and complete the certificates for the registered voters the individual or entity will be designating as challengers and watchers. You should obtain or the designating entity should give you extra copies of your Certificate so that you can give the election judges a copy of your Certificate when you visit a polling place.

You are encouraged to attend an election judges' training class. By attending this class, you will understand the responsibilities of election judges (also called pollworkers) and what to expect during early voting and on election day. If you are interested in attending an election judges' class, please contact your local board of elections and ask about observing a class. The local board may:

1. Limit the number of observers for a particular training based on the available space;
2. Designate where you are allowed to sit or stand during the training so that your presence is not disruptive to the trainer or election judges;
3. Prohibit your physical access to all election-related equipment and materials;
4. Prohibit you from asking questions before or during training but allow questions after training;
5. Prohibit you from making audio or video recordings during all or part of the training session; and
6. Tell you to leave if your behavior is disruptive for either the trainer or election judges.

4. What do election judges do and who is in charge of the polling place?

Election judges are the individuals responsible for running the polling places. Most polling places have four kinds of election judges:

1. Chief judges – There are two chief judges (one registered Democrat and one registered Republican) in each polling place. The chief judges are the supervisors of each polling place and oversee all polling place activities.
2. Check-in judges – These judges are responsible for verifying each voter who arrives to vote.
3. Voting unit judges – These judges escort voters to available voting units and answer questions about voting on the voting unit.

4. Provisional judges – These judges administer provisional voting. In some polling places, the chief judges may also serve as provisional judges.

If you have a question while you are at a polling place, direct all questions to the chief judges.

Part II: Information for Individuals and Entities Designating Challengers and Watchers

5. Why should I or my organization designate individuals as challengers and watchers?

You may wish to designate individuals as challengers and watchers if you want your representatives to:

1. Be present in the polling place and observe the opening, voting, and closing procedures during early voting or on election day;
2. Report who has voted during early voting or on election day; or
3. On election day, provide you with election results from certain precincts.

Challengers and watchers cannot act as voter advocates or attempt to exercise political influence while in the polling place. This is not the role of a challenger or watcher, and they will be removed from the polling place if they engage in these or any other prohibited activities.

6. What should I do before designating an individual as a challenger or watcher?

Before designating individuals as challengers or watchers, you should:

1. Read this manual and understand the role of challengers and watchers;
2. Contact the local boards of elections where you intend to have challengers and watchers and schedule their attendance at election judges' training. If you intend to have a large scale program, contact SBE for training;
3. If you intend to distribute a manual or written instructions to your designated challengers and watchers, submit a draft of the manual or instructions to SBE for review and comment;
4. Do not provide information to your designated challengers and watchers that conflicts with any information in this manual; and
5. Verify that the individual or individuals you intend to designate as challengers and watchers are registered Maryland voters.

It is not necessary that each Challenger and Watcher Certificate have an original signature. You may sign one certificate, make copies of the signed certificate, and complete the certificates for the registered voters you will be designating as challengers and watchers. An incomplete certificate may not be accepted by the election judges.

7. Who should sign the Challenger and Watcher Certificate?

If a candidate is designating challengers and watchers, the candidate should sign the Challenger and Watcher Certificate. If a political party or other group of voters is designating challengers and watchers, the Certificate should be signed by an officer, the executive director of the entity, or other person authorized to sign a document on behalf of the entity. (The chairman or treasurer of a political committee formed by a group of voters supporting or opposing a candidate, principle, or proposition on the ballot can sign the certificate.)

You should give your challengers and watchers extra copies of the Certificates so that challengers and watchers can give the election judges a copy of their Certificate when they visit a polling place.

8. Can I designate more than one challenger and watcher for the same polling place?

Yes. More than one challenger and watcher may be assigned to the same polling place. Typically, however, an individual or organization should not designate more challengers and watchers than the number of check-in judges in that polling place. Election judges can limit the number of challengers and watchers to ensure the orderly flow of election business.

9. Should I notify the local board(s) of election that I will be designating challengers and watchers?

Yes. You should provide the local board(s) of elections with either copies of completed Challenger and Watcher Certificates or a list of the individuals you have designated to serve as challengers and watchers and the polling places to which they have been assigned.

Part III: During Early Voting and on Election Day

10. What are my rights as an accredited challenger and watcher?

You have the right to:

1. Enter the polling place 30 minutes before the voting can begin (voting begins at 10:00 a.m. during early voting and 7:00 a.m. on election day);
2. Enter or be present at the polling place at any time during voting hours;
3. Remain in the polling place until all post-voting tasks have been completed and the election judges leave the polling place;
4. Maintain a list of registered voters who have voted or individuals who have cast provisional ballots; and
5. Enter and leave a polling place to take out information identifying who has voted.

You should be respectful of the responsibilities of the election judges. As an accredited challenger and watcher, you have certain rights, and election judges are required to protect you when you are exercising these rights. The requirement that the election judges protect your rights, however, is not absolute. An election judge may remove you if you are exercising your rights in a manner that interferes with the work of the election judges in conducting the election and carrying out their assigned tasks.

11. What should I do when I arrive at a polling place?

You should introduce yourself to the chief judges and show them your Challenger and Watcher Certificate. You are not required to give the certificate to the election judges as you may need the certificate if you go to a different polling place later in the day or will be serving as challenger and watcher during multiple days of early voting, but you are encouraged to bring a copy of your Certificate and give the copy to one of the election judges. You may also be asked for identification.

If an election judge questions your accreditation as a challenger and watcher, you may remain in the polling place while one of the chief judges contacts the local board of elections.

12. What am I permitted to do in a polling place?

- a. Before the polls open

If you wish to observe the election judges performing their election morning activities, you must be at the polling place by 9:30 a.m. during early voting or 6:30 a.m. on election day. (If you arrive after 9:30 a.m. during early voting or 6:30 a.m. on election day, the election judges are not required to admit you into the polling place to observe the election morning activities and you must wait until the polls open at 10:00 a.m. during early voting or 7:00 a.m. on election day to enter.) During this time, the election judges will be setting up the electronic pollbooks¹, posting polling place signs, accounting for provisional ballots, and opening and preparing the voting units for voting.

To facilitate your observation, election judges will read aloud the seal number and tamper tape number for each voting unit and verbally verify that the numbers match the numbers pre-recorded on the opening certificate. This enables you to record the seal and tamper tape numbers without delaying the election judges.

On the first day of early voting and on election day, accompanied by an election judge, you may:

1. Observe the election judges printing the Zero Report;
2. Review (but do not touch) the Zero Report signed by the election judges;
3. Verify that new tamper tape has been applied; and
4. Verify that no voters have been checked in on the electronic pollbooks.

Keep in mind that, while you may look, you may not touch any election documents or equipment.

While you are permitted to observe the opening of the polls, it is important that you do not interfere with the work of the election judges. You may be removed from the polling place if a majority of the election judges in the polling place agree that your presence will prevent the timely opening of the polls.

b. During voting hours

During voting hours, you must be positioned near the check-in judges and inside the voting room so that you can see and hear each person as he or she checks in to vote. If you do not believe that a voter is whom he or she claims to be, you may challenge the voter's identity. Refer to Question #18 for more information about the challenge process.

Periodically throughout the day, you may ask:

1. One of the chief judges to accompany you to voting units not currently being used by voters to verify the tamper tape and public counter; and
2. One of the check-in judges to allow you to see the number of voters who have been checked in to vote (located at the bottom, center of the look-up screen).

While the election judges must accommodate your request, they have the sole discretion to determine when this occurs. When making your requests, consider how busy the polling place is. During peak voting times, an election judge will most likely not accommodate your request; ask to verify information during non-peak voting times when there is limited or no voting activity.

Except as described above, you cannot move about the polling place during voting hours. You must stay near the check-in judges when you are in the voting room. You are also prohibited from attempting to:

¹ An electronic pollbook is an electronic tablet-like device that holds the State's list of registered voters and is used by check-in judges to check-in voters as they appear to vote.

1. Determine how a voter voted or intends to vote;
2. Talk in the polling place with any voter;
3. Assist any voter in voting; or
4. Physically handle an original election document and equipment.

If you wish to talk with a voter, you must do so outside the polling place and outside the 100 foot “no electioneering” zone. If a voter initiates contact with you inside the polling place or within the “no electioneering” zone, advise the voter that you, as a challenger and watcher, are prohibited from talking to him or her inside the polling place and refer the voter to an election judge.

Remember, election judges are authorized to remove you if you are interfering with the election process.

c. After the polls close

If you wish to observe the poll closing activities, you must be in the polling place before 8:00 p.m. (Polls close at 8:00 p.m. during early voting and on election day.) If you are not in the polling place when the polls close on election day, the election judges are not required to admit you into the polling place until the results have been printed from each voting unit and posted. (Election results will not be printed during early voting.)

The election judges will not begin the end of day procedures on the voting units until the last voter in line at 8:00 p.m. has voted. All voters in line at 8:00 p.m. are allowed to vote, even if they do not cast a vote until after 8:00 p.m.

To facilitate your observation, election judges will verbally verify that the numbers on the tamper tape match the numbers recorded earlier in the day and will read aloud the tamper tape and seal numbers placed on the voting units so that you may record the seal and tamper tape numbers without delaying the election judges. You may also record the number of voters in the precinct (on election day) or early voting center (during early voting) who are recorded on the electronic pollbooks as having been checked in to vote.

Accompanied by an election judge, you may also on election day:

1. Observe the election judges printing the Totals Report;
2. Review (but do not touch) the Totals Report signed by the election judges; and
3. Verify that new tamper tape has been applied and seal affixed to outside of the unit.

Keep in mind that, while you may look, you cannot touch any election documents or equipment.

On election day, if the chief judges move a voting unit to another room in the polling place to transmit unofficial election results to the local board of elections, you have the right to accompany the chief judges and observe the transmission process. After the results have been transmitted by modem, the voting unit will be returned to the polling room and another Totals Report will be printed from the unit and posted with the first Totals Report. This second printing demonstrates that the results did not change when the voting unit left the polling room.

13. What am I prohibited from doing as a challenger or watcher?

You are generally prohibited from interfering with the work of the election judges in conducting the election and performing their assigned tasks. Election judges are required to keep the peace and can order the arrest of any person who violates any provision of State election law and interferes with their work.

In addition to the prohibited activities listed under #12(b), you cannot use cameras and electronic devices, such as cellular telephones, pagers, laptops, and PDAs (i.e., Blackberries), in the polling place. You must be outside the polling place and the “no electioneering” zone to use any electronic device. You cannot act as voter advocates or attempt to exercise political influence while in the polling place. This is not the role of a challenger or watcher, and if you do this, you will be removed from the polling place.

Lastly, you cannot bring any political materials or newspapers or news magazines in the polling place or wear anything with a political message. This includes buttons, shirts, hats, stickers, and the like.

14. What can I bring with me to the polling place?

You must bring your signed Challenger and Watcher Certificate and identification and should bring this manual. You can also bring with you a paper, pen, folding chair, and food.

15. What if I see an election judge do something improper or neglect to perform a required task?

As a challenger and watcher, you do not have the right to challenge an act of an election judge. If, however, you are certain that an election judge either improperly performed a task or neglected to perform a required task, you should notify the local board of elections or follow the instructions provided by the individual or entity who designated you as a challenger and watcher. See Appendix E for contact information for the local boards of elections. Remember, even if you observed an election judges’ training class, you may not have all of the information provided to the election judges or may be relying on outdated information.

16. I do not have a Challenger and Watcher Certificate. What can I do on election day?

If you do not have a Challenger and Watcher Certificate, you are considered a “nonaccredited challenger and watcher.” Nonaccredited challengers and watchers are permitted in a polling place for one purpose – to challenge an individual voter’s right to vote. The only ground on which a challenge can be made is a challenge to the voter’s identity (i.e., that the voter is not whom he or she says he or she is). Once a majority of the election judges resolves the challenge, you must leave the polling place. Refer to Question #18 for information on how to make a challenge.

You do not have the right to challenge an act of an election judge. Refer to Question #15 for information on what to do if you are certain that an election judge either improperly performed a task or neglected to perform a required task.

17. On what grounds can I challenge a voter?

You may challenge a voter only if you have a reasonable basis for asserting that the voter is not whom he or she claims to be. You cannot challenge a voter because you believe that he or she must vote by provisional ballot, that an election judge made a mistake when checking in a voter, or that the voter has moved or is ineligible to vote due to a criminal conviction.

18. What can I do if I believe a voter is not whom he or she claims to be?

You may challenge a voter’s identity only if you have a reasonable basis for asserting that a voter is not whom he or she claims to be. Because you may be required to sign a statement under penalty of perjury, your challenge to a voter’s identity must be made in good faith. You may not arbitrarily challenge voters.

If you wish to make a challenge, you must notify an election judge that you wish to make a challenge before the voter has been issued a voter authority card², voter access card³, or provisional ballot. Once you have notified an election judge of your challenge, the election judge will ask the challenged voter to provide identification. The acceptable forms of ID are:

1. Voter registration card;
2. Social Security card;
3. Valid Maryland driver's license or MVA-issued ID card;
4. Any ID card issued by any unit of federal, State, or local (county or municipal) government;
5. Any employee ID card with the individual's photo and issued to the individual in the ordinary course of the employer's business; or
6. A copy of a current bill, bank statement, government check, paycheck, or other government document that shows the individual's name and current address.

If the individual presents one of the forms of ID listed above, the election judge must let the voter complete the check in process and vote. If the individual does not present one of the forms of ID, the election judge will:

1. Require you to provide, in writing and under penalty of perjury, the reason for the challenge (see Appendix B for the Affidavit for Challenger and Challenged Voter);
2. Offer the challenged voter the opportunity to cast a provisional ballot and submit a signed statement, witnessed by the election judge, of his or her identity; and
3. Submit to the local board of elections the provisional ballot and other materials related to the challenge.

During the provisional ballot canvass (held on the second Wednesday after the election), the local board of canvassers will determine, based on the information submitted by you and the challenged voter, whether the voter is whom he or she claims to be and is otherwise qualified to vote.

19. Can a polling place open if the election judges represent only one political party?

Yes. Under advice from the Attorney General, the election judges present must open the polling place by 10:00 a.m. during early voting or 7:00 a.m. on election day, even if there are election judges of only one political party.

20. Can I stand within the 100 foot "no electioneering" zone?

No. When you leave the polling room, you may not linger in the "no electioneering" zone. For most polling places, the 100 foot zone is measured from the entrance and exit of the building (not the voting room) that is closest to the part of the building in which voting occurs. If an early voting center is located in a multiuse facility, the "no electioneering" zone is 100 feet from the space where early voting is being conducted.

Part IV: Other Opportunities for Public Observation

Throughout the election process, there are several opportunities for the public to observe the election process. In addition to serving as a challenger and watcher on election day, any individual may observe the following:

² A voter authority card is the slip of paper printed by the printer attached to the electronic pollbook. The voter confirms the information printed on the voter authority card (i.e., name, address, date of birth) and signs the card.

³ A voter access card is the card that enables voters to vote on a touchscreen voting unit. A check-in judge inserts it into the electronic pollbook, which programs the voter's correct ballot style on the voter access card.

1. Pre-election demonstration of voting system and parallel testing;
2. Return of supplies on election night;
3. Counting of provisional and absentee ballots; and
4. Verification of vote count and certification of election.

All of these events are open to the public but are subject to certain restrictions. No forms signed by a candidate or political party are required to observe these events.

Pre-Election Demonstration of Voting System and Parallel Testing

Each local board of elections is required to conduct a pre-election demonstration of the Logic and Accuracy testing and parallel testing on the voting system and allow the public to inspect the printouts of the test results of the Logic and Accuracy testing. You should contact the local board of elections for the location and time of Logic and Accuracy testing.

Logic and Accuracy (L & A) testing is the process by which voting equipment is configured, tested and certified for accuracy prior to an election. Each component is tested to verify that it is fully functional, accurately counts and records votes, and free from mechanical problems and that each voting unit contains the appropriate ballot styles for its designated polling place. L & A testing includes multiple phases:

1. Each voting unit (both touchscreen and optical scan) is prepared and configured. The correct ballot styles are downloaded to the touchscreen voting units to be used in that election.
2. On the touchscreen voting units, votes are cast on each voting unit. The number of votes cast on each unit exceeds the expected number of voters that will use the voting unit during early voting or on election day. On the optical scan units, test ballots are scanned, and the results printed from the unit are compared with the expected results. This ensures that both the touchscreen and optical scan units are recording votes accurately.
3. These test votes are counted by each voting unit as well as the central tabulating computer. This ensures complete accuracy throughout the entire voting and vote counting process.
4. All test votes are cleared, and the voting units are locked, sealed and secured ready to be used in the election.

Parallel testing is a method of testing an electronic voting unit by producing an independent set of results that can be compared against the results produced by the voting unit and is cited as a best practice by election administration and computer experts. This kind of testing confirms the accuracy of the voting unit in recording and tabulating votes.

During parallel testing, two individuals read aloud the votes cast on 50 paper ballots. Two people separately hand-tally the votes cast on paper, and two people cast the votes on a touchscreen voting unit. The teams periodically check to ensure that the two hand-tallies match and that the number of ballots cast match. At the conclusion of parallel testing, the two sets of hand-tallies are compared to the results generated by the voting unit. The hand-tallies and the voting unit totals should match.

Return of Supplies on Election Night

You may also observe the return of polling place supplies on election night at the local board of elections' designated location. Supplies may be returned to a central location in the county or a regional site. As the local boards of election have the option of creating regional sites, you should contact the local board of elections where you wish to observe the return of supplies to find out where the supplies are being returned election night.

Depending on the process for returning supplies and available space, you may be required to stand in a designated area. While you may observe this process, you are not permitted to touch any election document or equipment. You should direct all questions about the return of supplies to the local board of elections.

Counting of Provisional and Absentee Ballots

The local boards of canvassers meet in public session after each election to count provisional and absentee ballots. There are three canvasses – two for absentee ballots and one for provisional ballots.

For gubernatorial primary elections:

Absentee 1 Canvass	1 st Thursday after election
Provisional Canvass	2 nd Wednesday after election
Absentee 2 Canvass	2 nd Wednesday after election

For all other elections:

Absentee 1 Canvass	1 st Thursday after election
Provisional Canvass	2 nd Wednesday after election
Absentee 2 Canvass	2 nd Friday after election

You should contact the local board of elections for the location and time of each canvasses.

The absentee and provisional canvasses are open to the public. You may observe all sessions of the canvassing board, including observing the canvassing teams review and open absentee ballot envelopes and open provisional ballot applications. You may position yourself near the canvassing teams so that you may observe their review of envelopes and applications but are prohibited from trying to ascertain how a voter voted or physically handling an original election document. You must direct all questions concerning the canvass process to the Election Director or the individual organizing the canvass.

If you wish to challenge a decision of the canvassing board, ask the Election Director or the individual organizing the canvass for the Canvass Challenge Form. (See Appendix C for the Canvass Challenge Form.) Complete this form and give it to the Election Director or individual in charge of the canvass who will put the completed form with the ballot(s) and related documents and set them aside for consideration by the local board of canvassers. You may only challenge a decision of the canvass at which the ballot was accepted or rejected.

The board's counsel must be present before the local board of canvassers may make a decision on the challenge. If the board's counsel is not available when you present the challenge, the board must delay any decision until counsel is present. With counsel present, the board will decide whether to accept or reject the ballot(s) in question. (To reject a ballot, the vote must be unanimous.) If the board votes to accept the challenged ballot(s), the ballot will be separated from other ballots and counted on a separate memory card.

Verification of Vote Count and Certification of Election Results

Before certifying an election, each local board of canvassers verifies the vote count. After verifying the vote count, the members of the local boards of canvassers certify that the election results are accurate and that the vote has been verified. This verification and certification generally take place at the conclusion of the second absentee ballot canvass.

Appendix A: Challenger and Watcher Certificate

Part I – Instructions and Information

Instructions to Designating Candidate or Entity: You may designate a Maryland registered voter as a challenger and watcher if you are: (a) a candidate; (b) a political party; or (c) any other group of voters supporting or opposing a candidate, principle, or proposition on the ballot. (To be eligible, the group of voters must form a political committee under section 13-207 of the Election Law Article.)

Appendix G: Provisional Voting and Identification Requirements

Provisional Voting

Provisional voting is a safeguard that ensures that no individual who asserts that he or she is registered and eligible to vote is prevented from casting a ballot. A provisional ballot will only be counted after the local board of canvassers has reviewed the provisional ballot application and made a determination that the individual is registered and eligible to vote.

An individual may be issued a provisional ballot for the following reasons:

1. The voter's name was not on the election register – The most common reason that an individual's name is not on the list of voters for that county for early voting or in that precinct on election day is that the individual moved and did not update his or her voter registration.
2. The voter was not able to provide required identification – See "Identification Requirements" below for an explanation of this requirement.
3. The voter has not yet met the verification requirement – An individual must provide a driver's license or social security number on his or her voter registration application and the number provided must be verified or the individual must present alternate identification.¹
4. The voter is not eligible to vote a regular ballot – The voter has either moved more than 21 days before election day and did not provide his or her new address to the local board of elections or the election register indicates that the voter received an absentee ballot or has already voted (either during early voting or earlier on election day).
5. In a primary election, the voter claims that he or she is affiliated with a political party other than the one shown in the precinct register.
6. The voter's identity was challenged.

Identification Requirements

Under Maryland law, most registered voters do not need to present identification before voting. There are three categories of individuals who are required to show ID before voting:

1. Individuals who registered to vote by mail after January 1, 2003, and have not yet satisfied the federal ID requirement;
2. Individuals who applied to register to vote after January 1, 2006, provided a driver's license or full or partial social security number that could not be verified by the Motor Vehicle Administration or Social Security Administration, and have not yet provided alternate ID; and
3. Voters whose identity is challenged by either an accredited or non-accredited challenger.

The individuals described in #1 and #2 above are clearly marked in the electronic pollbook as needing to show ID. No other voter should be asked to present ID.

When a voter described in #1 checks in to vote, the election judge will ask him or her for acceptable ID. If the voter presents acceptable ID, the election judge will record the ID the voter provided and the voter will be permitted to vote on the voting unit. If the voter does not provide acceptable ID, the voter will be required to vote a provisional ballot. The voter will have until the start of the provisional ballot canvass (2nd Wednesday after the election) to present acceptable ID and have his or her provisional ballot counted.

¹ An individual who does not have either a driver's license or social security number must check the appropriate box on the voter registration application. Neither federal nor State law requires an individual to have a driver's license or social security number to register and vote.

If an individual described in #2 checks in to vote, he or she will only be permitted to vote by provisional ballot because his or her registration is not yet complete. The provisional ballot judge will ask the individual to show ID and will record the ID presented on the back of the provisional ballot application. If the individual does not present acceptable ID, he or she will have until the start of the provisional ballot canvass (2nd Wednesday after the election) to present acceptable ID and have his or her provisional ballot counted.

The forms of acceptable ID are different for voters described in #1 and #2 than for challenged voters. Refer to the answer to Question #18 of this manual for a list of acceptable ID for challenged voters. Voters described in #1 and #2 above will be asked to present one of the following forms of ID:

1. Current and valid photo ID (i.e., Maryland driver's license or MVA-issued ID card, student, employee, or military ID, U.S. passport); or
2. Current utility bill, bank statement, government check, paycheck, or other government document with the voter's name and current address.
